Kathryn Bishop, April 2nd, 2014

Coin jewellery brand Mi Moneda has reported a solid start to the year, with a 20% increase in UK stockists.

The brand made its BaselWorld debut this week with a stand in hall 2 showcasing its latest collections, sitting alongside Stephen Webster, Shamballa and Australian pearl company Autore.

Following its growth with new stockists, it is understood that Mi Moneda will be rolling out to a larger number of Fraser Hart and Beaverbrooks stores in the months ahead, and has a charity initiative in the pipeline.

Mi Moneda used the show to introduce its extra small size of coin suited to hoop earrings and its latest bracelet collection. It is said to have won interest from a number of wider markets, having already secured retail partners in Europe, Latin America and the Caribbean.

The company also reported that it has grown to have 1,500 stockists worldwide since launching five years ago under the eye of its founder Michelle Mentrop.
